Microdec chosen to help students into employment

Company Anglia Ruskin University

About Anglia Ruskin University were awarded university status in 1992, and today, in terms of their total student population of approximately 25,500, they are one of the largest universities in the country.

92% of their graduates go into work or further study; one of the highest employability rates in the higher education sector .

Their main campuses at Cambridge and Chelmsford, Essex attract students not only from the East of England but in increasing numbers from mainland Europe and from further a field.

The Employment Bureau is their campus-based recruitment and employment agency that deals specifically with students and graduates looking for temporary and permanent work.

As well as co-ordinating the temporary recruitment needs of departments within Anglia Ruskin, the Employment Bureau provides recruitment solutions for local, national and international businesses.

The specialist team of qualified staff provide a committed, professional and personal service that ensures they place the right person in the right role at the right company.

Placing Students first

Having come from a recruitment background the Bureau Manager, Dominic Drane knew that Profile RPM was the right tool for the task ahead. Profile RPM is now the corner stone of the Bureau providing thousands of students the ability to find work on and off Campus. Each semester the Students provide a list of course dates and times which is entered into Profile RPM, this allows the Bureau staff to match each student with the relevant role whatever it may be, working in Campus Offices, the on-site coffee shops or the restaurants. Also many assist with open days for new students.

Profile RPM also assists the Bureau in placing students outside of the University where they are working with local businesses to promote opportunity in the region. Fitting work around study time, students can find work locally evenings and weekends in places such as Call/Service Centres.

Once students have graduated, the Bureau will assist in finding permanent placements.
